

Jornada Volunteer Pediatric Rehabilitation Clinic

Jornada, a Spanish word for "a day's journey", is a volunteer rehabilitation clinic for children with disabilities in collaboration with the Hospital Infantil de las Californias and other medical organizations in Mexico.

The rehabilitation department of Hospital Infantil de las Californias held a volunteer service day on Saturday, August 25, 2018. They welcomed Physical Therapists, Occupational Therapists, Speech and Language Pathologists, translators, and family and friends of the children being served. DPT Students from Mount Saint Mary's University volunteered to assist with physical therapy services, including provision of multi-disciplinary therapy consultations to children with disabilities. Donated equipment such as wheelchairs, walkers, braces, and other medically necessary equipment were provided to the patients free of charge. The services provided endeavor to improve the lives of the children of the region.
