Adaptation Towards Transformation for the Future

2019 RAA Workshops & Conference

June 7th & 8th | Doheny Campus
Mount Saint Mary’s University, Los Angeles

The Doheny Campus is located conveniently just south of downtown Los Angeles in the historic West Adams district. Originally, a gated Victorian estate, the campus is beautifully landscaped with tall trees and sweeping gardens, and is dotted with elegant mansions. The campus is easily reached from Los Angeles International Airport or by car from the Santa Monica (10) Freeway or the Harbor 110 freeway.

The program features Dr. Scott Ziehm, setting the theme for the Workshops with a paper entitled “The State of Nursing Science through the DNP and PhD Lens: Historical Perspectives and Future Directions.” The RAA highly experienced Executive Board Members, from the US and International Chapters, will lead the two workshops on Knowledge for the DNP and the PhD (see p. 2 for further details).

Conference Day on Saturday will open with the Keynote on the conference theme and Dialogue with the Theorist by Sister Callista Roy. The award papers offer a variety of significant papers based on the Roy Adaptation Model; the Roy Adaptation Association Business meeting will include the induction of the new officers of the RAA. The schedule will allow time for networking and enjoying friends and new members (see p. 3 for further details).

NEW INITIATIVE: THE RAA LEADERSHIP MENTORING PROGRAM

Ellen Buckner, RAA Executive Board, Leadership Mentoring Chair
Pam Senesac, RAA, Executive Board Leadership Mentoring Co-Chair

As the RAA is transitioning to a new home at Mount St. Mary’s University and transitioning to its next generation of leaders and scholars, it became a strategic priority to develop the leadership of those scholars to move the organization forward. For this purpose the Leadership Mentoring Program was begun. The purpose of the program is to engage members interested in leadership in the RAA in an intentional process of collaboration and strategic development on the association and its work. A call for mentors and mentees went out to Board Members in February 2019 and the first cohort for 2019-2020 was identified. Eight mentees and corresponding mentors will pilot the program, growing in knowledge of leadership and the history and strategic plan of the RAA.

The Leadership Mentoring Program is designed to be inclusive of all the RAA chapters world-wide. As the program matures, it is hoped that mentor-mentee interactions will include building relationships across global chapters. Mentors and mentees will meet face-to-face at the annual RAA Conference and participate in leadership activities that contribute to the work of the organization. These activities will support breadth of the mentee’s experiences and network with other Roy scholars world-wide. Mentees may be at any stage of career from new graduate to senior administrator. Mentors and mentees affirm their willingness to participate in growing the relationship and supporting professional development of the mentee.

Examples of RAA-based activities include using knowledge of Roy Model to respond to requests for scholar input for given projects such as the following: a) Development of an article for the RAA Review, b) Participation as an RAA representative on an international journal advisory board, c) Consulting or assisting on implementation projects such as developing a RAM-based tool or applying the model to a specific population, d) Providing RAM-based education for faculty development or practicing nurses/hospitals. Our hope is that through these mentored relationships, mentees will grow in breadth and depth of applying the model across settings, populations, and formats. The organization will gain a cadre of well-prepared collaborative leaders to further application of the model and the work of the RAA.

THE FUTURE OF NURSIOLOGY

Debra R. Hanna (with additions by Sr. Callista Roy)

On March 21 and 22, 2019 a momentous conference on nursing theory was held in Cleveland, Ohio. The conference, Nursing Theory: A Fifty-Year Perspective, Past and Future, was co-sponsored by the Frances Payne Bolton School of Nursing at Case Western Reserve University and by the American Academy of Nursing’s Expert Panel on Nursing Theory.

The first day of sessions opened in a sunlit room with a brief welcome from Dr. Joyce Fitzpatrick. She advised attendees about a complimentary copy of Advances in Nursing Science that was in each attendee’s conference packet. The issue’s theme was “Leading Scholarly Discourse.” Many conference planners had authored articles within that special issue. Conference planners included Sr. Callista Roy, Joyce Fitzpatrick, Pamela Reed, Marlaine Smith and Mary Jane Smith. Each author gave a brief overview of their articles’ ideas, which set the tone for the conference. Sr. Callista Roy explained her model for nursing knowledge development that is domain-derived and shaped by practice and uses a common goal of nursing for all theories to contribute nursing knowledge toward the common goal.

Dr. Peggy Chinn delivered an inspiring keynote speech, entitled “The Discipline of Nursing: Moving Forward Boldly.” Chinn drew from the earliest nursing theory conferences held in 1967, 1968 and 1969 and discussed significant accomplishments to develop knowledge for our discipline these past fifty years.

I am wishing you well as the seasons change for all of us. California is beautiful as spring arrives with lots of green on the hills, wild flowers blooming, the ocean shimmering and snow on the mountains, all visible from our hilltop. We hope that those who have endured a difficult winter can soon welcome a bright spring. We are also grateful that the work of our executive board members, our intern, Annabell Salgado, and our support services at Mount Saint Mary’s have helped to keep the RAA activities running close to on time and moving forward.

This edition of RAA Review highlights our 2019 workshops and conference to be held on the charming Doheny Campus of Mount Saint Mary University Los Angeles. We held our 2016 Conference on this campus and our participants appreciated the closeness to downtown Los Angeles, the beauty and peacefulness of the campus as well as ample free parking. The program of the two days will provide the opportunity to look forward as we set higher goals for adaptation to reach toward the transitions needed in our society today. The workshops take up a topic that is prominent in the USA and being addressed in other countries as well. We will be looking at doctoral programs in nursing, both the DNP and the PhD. The Roy Adaptation Model can help us distinguish between, yet give clear focus to both. Our Award Ceremony will be special as we honor the authors of the award-winning abstracts, five papers and one poster from a wide geographic area and a broad array of stimulating topics. Our business meeting will be particularly significant as we induct our first elected officers. As you know the election is going on now and extends to April 17, 2019. Information about candidates is on the website and members received links to the ballot. If you are a member and did not receive the link, please let us know at royassociation@gmail.com.

We are pleased to include an introduction to our new leadership mentoring program, headed by two RAA Board members, which holds promise for our future. Also be aware of reports on other Theory Conferences that have occurred and are coming up and are featured.

Since our Conference last year was at Mount Saint Mary’s Chalon campus and this year we are again aggressively marketing to schools in California, we hope that we will draw more local people, including MSMU alums to attend the 2019 Workshops and Conference. We look forward to welcoming all our RAA members, and others interested in this work to join us for this special 2019 RAA Workshop and Conference.

Chinn explained the history of a new name proposed for our discipline, Nursology. She also mentioned the new website Nursology.net that pulls together information about nursing theory and activities in nursing knowledge. Her keynote speech is available on Nursology.net where anyone can read it and be inspired.

For two full days attendees enjoyed nearly 70 presentations from nurse scholars interested in nursing theories of all kinds. PhD students and seasoned scholars alike presented inspiring papers. Debra Hanna’s paper on levels of theory in nursing education was particularly well-received. Jean Watson called her a real scholar. The conference was permeated by a welcoming spirit of connected hospitality. Most of all, attendees left the conference looking forward to the next fifty years of nursology with hope.
